ABSTRACT

Bibliographic data, physical characteristics, contents, prices, and ordering instructions for Spanish and Puerto Rican instructional materials listed in this issue of the Materials Acquisition Project are provided for each entry. Subject categories include social science, language arts, pure science, technology, the arts, literature, and history. Materials are classified according to the Dewey decimal system by subject matter, with related subject areas utilized. The annotation is an objective description of materials and often includes suggestions concerning appropriate grade-level and utilization of materials. The bibliographic materials are generally adapted for use by bilingual teachers. Many familiar works included in the compilation have been translated from foreign languages into Spanish. For the companion documents, see FL 002 968-FL 002 970 and FL 002 972-FL 002 977. (RL)

CONCERNING THE BIBLIOGRAPHIC SECTION

The staff of the Materials Acquisition Project has generally adapted the bibliographic section of the annotations to the needs of bilingual teachers, and in some cases, in order to more effectively catalog materials published in Spanish, has made adaptations of the Dewey decimal system. The development of these adaptations is not terminated but constitutes an on-going process. Therefore, the information contained in the bibliographic section, as well as the format of the section, continues to evolve.

The Materials Acquisition staff will continue to seek to maintain standardized uniformity of text and format; yet as changes are made they will be incorporated into the publication. It is expected that there will be a minimal number of changes in the future.

The final page of this publication contains Errata #1, that institutes changes to issues 1, 2, and 3.
